

History & Politics Program

Purpose Statement

The Department of History and Politics majors are designed to develop student scholarship in the study of history and political science, to nurture historical and political awareness, and to enhance critical and analytical skills. Graduates are prepared for a variety of careers where strong research, organization, and writing skills are needed, as well as for graduate and professional programs in history, political science, and law. The program also prepares graduates for careers in secondary education with a specialization in social studies. Majors at McPherson have the advantage of the college's central Kansas location, with research access to local, state, and federal libraries and archives. The department serves this purpose for students at McPherson College by

- providing wide access to available formal courses in the disciplines of history and politics;
- offering opportunities for independent research and reading in the relevant fields;
- encouraging students to study further in related graduate and professional programs;
- supporting and encouraging students with interests in careers related to the disciplines to pursue such careers;
- meeting State Department of Education standards for certification in the area of social studies (applies to candidates for teacher certification only)

Course Content

General Education - "History: Students should be able to demonstrate knowledge of the historical method." — College Catalog. Courses fulfilling the history general education requirement are either 100 - or 200 - level classes. They are designed to emphasize how historic events shape people's lives, as well as how historic events are interpreted in different ways.

100 level - No prior college experience required, no prior history coursework required. Designed to provide the most direct supervision of students. Includes emphasis on introductory terms and concepts. Student work emphasizes recall and use of material delivered in the course and completion of more directly prescribed assignments.

200 level - Suitable for students with no prior history coursework, students should have prior college experience. Students develop skill locating, interpreting and applying resources beyond those specifically provided by the instructor. Increased emphasis on both written and oral presentation consistent with the standards of the discipline. Higher expectations for engagement of students in classroom. Students expected to apply course content to subject areas beyond those directly delivered in the course.

300 level - Designed for students at the sophomore level or higher with previous college history coursework. Students develop skill in independently locating, interpreting and applying resources. Increased emphasis on both written and oral presentation consistent with the standards of the discipline, including a minimum 10 page written research paper and formal oral presentation. High expectations for engagement of students in classroom.

400 level - Intended for advanced students conducting largely independent research and project development. Students will locate resources, conduct research and implement curriculum of their own design, with faculty consultation and supervision.

Methodology Core Courses

All of the Majors in the department share a three-course methodology sequence.

G-HI130 Introductory Methods for Historical Analysis (see course descriptions following this section) - This course introduces the core questions, resources, and methods of inquiry used by historians. This 100 level course should be taken as soon as possible; ideally during the first year of study at McPherson. Students transferring to McPherson should take care that they schedule this course as early as possible. Successful completion of G-HI130 is a prerequisite for enrollment in the second methodology core course, G-HI410

G-HI410 Historiography (see course descriptions following this section) - In this course students will further develop research techniques and prepare a historiography - a survey of how historians have approached a specific historical question. Successful completion of HI410 is a prerequisite for enrolling in HI 475 or PS 475 Senior Thesis.

HI 475 or PS 475 Senior Thesis (see course descriptions following this section) - In this capstone course students will apply the lessons of earlier content and methods courses. Working with one-on-one supervision the student will prepare their own original research project.
